Candidates to Air Platforms At Convocation Thursday, May 11

Bands, banners and bunting are expected to be the order of the day next Thursday at the 11 a. m. convocation when candidates for Student council representatives and class officers will conduct their campaign before the student body. The elections will be held Friday, May 12.

Twelve candidates will compete for the four positions of member-at-large. They are Richard Booth, Janet Dow, Leigh Gisvold, Bill Holes, Harold Jensen, Albert Johnson, Andrew Larson, Toni Romano, Dick Wallin, Ron Webber and Dave Wilson. Bob Leestamper withdrew from the race because he was also nominated for president of the junior class.

Two seniors have been nominated for the office of president of the Student council. Don Cook and Richard T. Todd will present their platforms at the convocation Thursday morning.

Senior class nominations closed with Don Cook, Lawrence LaFave, Roger Lillehei and Herbert Taylor for the presidency. Pat Guillison, Dagmar Johnson, Charles Jaksha and Dick Todd were nominated for senior class vice-president. Competing for senior class secretary-treasurer will be Pat Guillison, June Hendrickson, Bertil Larson and Helmer Nelson.

Nominated for junior class president were Charles Jeronimus, Bob Leestamper and Mark Magney; vice-president, Tom Regimbal and Joe Stevens, and secretary-treasurer, Norma Davidson, Walter Ellingson and Paul Skagerberg.

Janet Dow, Bill Holes and Ron Kramnic were nominated for sophomore class president. Competing for vice-presidency will be Peter Lukovsky and John Morrison and for secretary-treasurer, Janet Dow, Peggy Hella, Peter Julsen and Clyde Pederson.

Freshmen Schedule Fun Night at Boys' Y

The all-school Fun night sponsored by the Freshman class will take place tonight at the Boys' YMCA, Second Street and Lake Avenue, from 8:30 p. m. to 12 midnight.

The varied program for the evening has Terry Evanson and his seven-piece orchestra playing for dancing and listening beginning at 9 p. m. Swimming, basketball and volleyball will be available to those inclined toward strenuous sports. The more reserved fun-seekers may be contented with ping pong, checkers or chess. Refreshments will be served in the Harbor room.

The admission to the Fun night is one activities card per student and guest.

The freshman committee chairmen in charge of arrangements are: Dick Wallin, refreshments; Florence Peterson, posters and Mary Lee Huseby, publicity.

Publications Bids to Open Next Monday

Filing for positions of editor and business manager of the STATESMAN and The Chronicle will be open until Monday, May 15. Applications must be filed no later than 5 p. m. that day with William S. Caldwell, faculty adviser, room 104 Main.

Applicants for the position must file a platform in addition to submitting pertinent biographical information. The platform should be a 500-word statement of how they would perform the position for which they are applying. Included should be editorial policy for editors and financial policy for business managers.

Appointments to the positions will be made by Provost Gibson following a joint meeting of the University Relations committee and the Publications sub-committee of the Student council.

Wesleyans to Hold Sale

The Wesley foundation will sponsor a Bake sale in Washburn, Wednesday, May 10, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Barbara Abernathy is chairman of the sale.

Next week's issue of the STATESMAN will be published by the journalism class. This move is taken to allow students to gain experience for next year's production of the newspaper.

Ede

Ede, English Art Critic, To Speak at Convocation

H. S. Ede, English artist, will address the convocation at 11 a. m. Tuesday, May 9, in the University auditorium. His topic will be "Pictures Are Like People." He will be introduced by Arthur Smith, head of the UMD art department.

Ede's lecture will deal with art appreciation in general from the old masters until today and with a search into the meaning of art and its status in everyday life.

Ede is well known in England as a student and critic of modern painting. For 15 years Ede was a curator of the National Gallery of British Arts in London.

He is the author of several books and magazine articles. A biography of Henri Gaudier-Brzeska, "Savage Messiah," was chosen as a Book-of-the-Month selection several years ago.

Spring Style Show To Be Held May 18

A Spring Style show, sponsored by the home economics department and the Home Economics club, will be held in Tweed May 18. Mary Anderson, president of the club, is general chairman.

Committee chairmen include Harriet Granquist, script; Marilyn Erickson, food; Valley Ellingsen and Mary Ann Clement, publicity; Janet Lewis and Norma Davidson, invitations; Shirley Hedberg and Dorothy Angelos, decorations.

Patrick's 'Hasty Heart' to Open May 11, Continue for Three Days

John Patrick's comedy, "The Hasty Heart," will be presented by the University Guild players May 11, 12 and 13 at 8:30 p. m. in the University auditorium. An extra performance sponsored by the Duluth Woman's club will be held Sunday, May 14 at 8 p. m.

According to Guild director Harold L. Hayes, "The Hasty Heart" is one of the best dramas to come out of World War II.

John Duncan as Lachlen McLachlen, a young Scot, comes into the midst of six wounded convalescing soldiers in a British hospital in the China-Burma-India theater of war. The story that ensues is one of emotional strife pitted against understanding.

Shirley Hanson is cast in the only woman's part.

The male cast includes Philip Smith, Yank; Charles Baznik, Tommy; James Meckola, Digger; James Pomroy, Kiwi; Herbert Taylor, the colonel; Carl Robinson, Blossom, the Basuto, and Richard E. Todd, the orderly.

Council Recommends Guild Subsidization

At last Tuesday's Student council meeting action was taken recommending that 40 cents of the activities fee be directed toward subsidization of the University theatre.

The council also allocated 150 dollars to the freshman class for the all-school fun night and 150 dollars to the

Tickets to Prom 'Fantasia' On Sale to Alumni, Faculty

Tickets for the Junior prom "Fantasia" are now on sale to alumni and faculty, according to ticket chairman Marvin Shapiro. He reported that sales to UMD students the past week have been heavy.

Working on publicity for the prom are Lucille Saloum, chairman, Dorette Wheat, Bob Rice, Jim Bianco, Chuck Berry, Therese Mackey and Shirley Kee.

Mary Swanstrom and Norman Sundeen head the miscellaneous committee.

Jimmy Dorsey, with his saxophone and his band, will appear at the prom, to be held in the Armory May 19. His band is noted for its "danceability."

Since the break-up of the Dorsey brother's band in the '30's, Jimmy Dorsey has organized several successful bands. The recordings of his first band helped to make the juke box popular.

Dorsey's present band was organized in 1948. Since then he has toured the country and played for the movies, radio and the recording studios.

ON THE VERGE of purchasing tickets to hear Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra May 19 is William Hannan. Nancy Anderson is about to make the sale.

In America

So Much Deadwood . . .

In America a man can take things easy—if he wants to. A man can let others carry the load—if he wants to. He doesn't have to vote, he doesn't have to think, he doesn't have to care—if he prefers not to.

In America a man can be so much deadwood—if he wants to.

But to live in this manner is not to live at all.

It takes work—hard, diligent work, to lead a full, rich, active life.

Full lives aren't handed out on silver platters.

The purpose of going to college centers around preparation for living an active life——and we're not taking full advantage of it!

Possession of a college degree will not by any means insure a full life in the future. To be sure it helps. But along with credits and honor points goes that intangible something some people call appreciation of the aesthetic—the ability to enjoy good music, to appreciate a fine play, to enjoy an intelligent lecture.

The difference between an average life and a full life might well be contained in one's ability to appreciate some of these aesthetic values.

This ability to appreciate aesthetic values takes work and time to develop—work and time which we should be putting in right now.

Yet each week events which could contribute vitally to our preparation for a full life are slipping by. To mention a few: less than 10 per cent of the student body have season tickets for the University Guild productions; many convocations featuring eminent lecturers go relatively unheeded; a very small per cent of the students go to University Concert series programs.

—but then in America a man can be so much deadwood—if he wants to.

★ EDITOR'S MAILBOX ★

Dear Editor:

The student council has recently appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of expanding Washburn hall. It was suggested that the rear wall could be torn down and an addition built on. The money for such an obviously expensive undertaking would perhaps be gotten from the convocation fund or from an increased activities fee.

If there is to be a re-allotment of funds for expansion purposes, why not direct it to the improvement of study facilities? Which is the more important objective: raising UMD's academic standards or increasing the revenues of America's tobacco growers?

A Non-Smoker

'There's Nothing Like A Dame,' Says Kinsey

"SOUSE PACIFIC"

Synopsis: Ezio Flotsam, the beachcomber, was marooned on a South Pacific island when he was three years old. He has never heard about women. It is now many years later, and in Act I, we saw lovely Jennifer Jetsam cast ashore on the same island. She is quite perplexed by Ezio's unique ignorance, to say the least. When the curtain came down last week, Ezio was sampling the beer from the barrels which composed Jennifer's life-raft.

Act II

As the curtain rises, Ezio is stretched on the sand, gorged with Budwiser. Jennifer has fallen asleep. A raucous voice is heard offstage, singing a sea-chanty. A few moments later, a brightly-plumed talking parrot struts on stage. He hops up on Ezio's distended abdomen and hums a few choruses of "Bali Hai" as he looks about.

The Parrot: Avast, you lazy land-lubber; on your feet!

Ezio: Go away Kinsey, and let me sleep. Be quiet, you'll disturb our guest.

Kinsey: Wal, shiver me timbers—a dame! Haven't seen one of them in fifty years. Ahoy! All hands on deck. Trim the mizzenmast. Lift up the topsheet and spanker!

Jennifer (awakening with a start): Don't you dare!

Ezio: Mr. Jetsam, I'd like you to meet Kinsey. My father taught him to talk and named him after his favorite gin.

Kinsey: Where do you get that "Mr." stuff, fatso? Can't you see by the cut of her jib that she's a woman?

Ezio: I don't understand, Kinsey. What's a woman? Do you know what it's all about?

Kinsey: Do I know? Brother-r-r-r I could write a book. (He hops over and whispers in Ezio's ear.)

Ezio: No!

Kinsey: Yes! (Ezio rises, brushing a lobster from his lap, and a crab from his hair. He fishes a clam from his pocket and fingers it nervously as he approaches Jennifer.)

Ezio: Pardon me, ma'm, but

Hollywood, Guild, Run Race For 'Hasty Heart' Premiere

By Herman Schneider

It's been a close race, but it looks as if the University theatre has won out.

As you've probably heard, the Guild is preparing John Patrick's "Hasty Heart" for production on May 11, 12 and 13. Hollywood's version of the same play is being released all over the country, and it was anybody's guess as to which would be the first to reach the Duluth audience.

PHIL SMITH, who plays Yank in the forthcoming Guild production of "Hasty Heart," models the kilt Jack Duncan will wear as Lachie. Shirley Hansen, feminine lead, holds the sporran in place. —(Photo by Palmer)

It seems as if the Guild is going to scoop the movie houses; the "Hasty Heart" film is booked at a local theatre for later in the month. However, it was shown at a special "sneak preview" last week and this reporter was among those present.

The movie makers have done a better-than-average job with "Hasty Heart." They have adapted it to the film media without violating the playwright's original purpose; it remains a first-rate drama and excellent entertainment.

We have also had a look at several University Theatre rehearsals, and it is our opinion that most people will find the amateur performance a more profitable experience. Director Harold Hayes has inculcated a sincerity of approach and a unity of purpose into the talented students with whom he is working on the forthcoming production.

To all those who prefer the living, three-dimensional stage to the two-dimensional movie screen, we recommend the Guild player's "Hasty Heart." For a unique insight into the difference between the stage and cinema technique, see them both.

ENTERTAINMENT

WHAT TO SEE . . .

Opera lovers who saw Verdi's "Rigoletto" at its recent Duluth showing are aware that the movie medium can be successfully applied to grand opera.

They can renew this conviction by seeing Verdi's "La Traviata" at the Lakeside theatre, now playing and running through Tuesday, May 9. Like "Rigoletto," this opera-movie is presented by the Rome Opera House and stars Tito Gobbi. The soundtrack includes a running narration in English.

CHEATERS . . .

At least one courageous professor here has backed up his moral convictions with a policy that is completely to-the-point: anyone caught cheating in one of his exams automatically receives an "F" for the course. This is as good a substitute as any for the character-building which should have preceded college entrance. Besides that, it undoubtedly will reduce cheating to a minimum.

BE-BOP SPOKEN HERE . . .

Jazz lovers who prefer their music unadulterated by the endless "request" lists which precede the records on most disk programs will find Don Doty's show refreshing. Doty airs his program on WKLK, 1450 on the dial, from 12:30 to four every Saturday afternoon. He limits request time to the first 15 minutes, and after that all be-bop breaks loose.

PARK BENCH BLUES . . .

"Help!" is the cry of Miss Harriet Harrison, OSPS, whose job it is to secure furnished living quarters for the 33 regular Naval officers who will be at UMD for 10 weeks' training beginning June 12. Anyone who knows of any furnished apartments, rooms or park benches should contact Miss Harrison.

you notice, it somewhat contrived at this point, but after all, this is only a musical comedy. Well, it's musical anyway.)

Ezio (who is busily supervising the beachcombing activities of his offsprings): Uh-huh.

Jenn: Tell me dear, how did you ever come to propose? Did Kinsey give you the idea?

Ezio: Nope. He didn't exactly tell me, but he gave me a pretty strong hint. (Kinsey enters, followed by a female of his species, and a number of their noisy offsprings. Kinsey steps up to the footlights and faces the audience.)

Kinsey (sings):
Oh, my wife and I were wed ten years ago,
And our married life's been bliss—and I should know;
I've been married 14 times
In a dozen different climes,
To six parrots, seven pigeons and a crow.

Now I'm a talking parrot as you've heard,
But my wife here is an untamed woodland bird.
Though I treat her like a louse
She's the world's most patient spouse,

For you see she cannot speak a single word.

(The entire company joins in a spirited rendition of "There Is Nothing Like A Dame" as the curtain falls.)

By Herbert Taylor

Kinsey has just explained about woman's function in modern society. I'd like to ask a favor of you.

Jenn: Yes?

Ezio: Would you teach me to cook? I've been living on raw oyster for thirty-five years and I'd like a little change.

(Curtain)

Act III

(Ten years later. Ezio and Jennifer are seated on the sand, surrounded by ten children, aged one to ten years.)

Jennifer: Just think dear, today is our anniversary. It was just ten years ago that Kinsey married us. How fortunate that he formerly belonged to a minister and remembered the whole ceremony. (The plot,

An Open Letter to The FBI

By Ray Naddy

Within our hallowed halls namely the walls of UMD, are hundreds of vigorous, young American youths. Among them are Don Sieger, Duluth, and

Herbert Schur, Mountain Iron. Both of these lads recently received sociology assistantships at Louisiana State university Baton Rouge, according to Dr. Gus Turbeville, assistant professor and head of the sociology department.

You are not interested in them, FBI. Nor are you interested in Kenneth Mills who has also recently received an assistantship. Mills has his assistantship in chemistry at Cornell university.

Now we have Dick Hoff. Remember that name, FBI, he is the one you are interested in.

Push your bifocals up from their position on the end of your nose and read on. If you do, you will save yourself time and effort when compiling Hoff's life history when you check his record for non-subversive activities.

Hoff is strictly a red-blooded American youth, but don't let that fool you. The red blood is hereditary and not caused by the environment, as you may think.

Dick Hoff has been appointed to an assistantship in nuclear chemistry at the University of California, Berkeley. You are interested in him because he will study under Dr. Glenn Seaborg in a project sponsored by the atomic energy commission. It is in this field that Hoff will work toward his Ph. D.

But relax, FBI, Hoff definitely is not a subversive, a communist nor even a fellow traveler. So you see, your job's done.

The Washburn committee was instructed to investigate the possibility of additional facilities for Washburn, either in the form of a quonset hut or a permanent addition.

The committee making a survey of the situation on the paths on campus and the improvement of the lawns recommended that the paths from 5th street to Washburn and the one leading toward Kent road be graveled. The committee, composed of Andrew Larson, Dolores Campbell and Sally Loucks, will present the results of their survey to the administration.

Art Department To Choose Mural

Final selection of the paintings which have been completed for the composite mural to be placed in Washburn will be announced next week, according to Arthur E. Smith, art instructor.

The design class has also been working on a book plate to be used in the library for books donated to UMD.

The art department is also planning an exhibition and tea which will be held Monday, 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. H. S. Ede, English artist and UMD convocation speaker, will be the honored guest. The event is open to all students and faculty members of UMD.

Harriers Hope for Clear Skies; Travel to St. Thomas Meet

By Kent Larson

Coach Joe Gerlach's 1950 edition of the UMD track team will compete in their first meet tomorrow provided the weatherman doesn't step in once more and put a stop to things.

The Bulldog thinclads are scheduled to journey to St. Paul for the St. Thomas Invitational meet where they will face competition from 15 Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and North Dakota schools. Most of the MIAC colleges are expected to compete.

Inclement weather forced the cancellation of last Tuesday's triangular meet with St. Cloud teachers college and St. John's college at Collegeville. The golf and tennis meets were also cancelled although an effort is being made to re-schedule them for the last week of spring quarter.

Gerlach said he plans to take a squad of 25, including several untried freshmen, to the St. Paul meet. He predicted that the UMD tracksters would do fairly well in the distance runs and field events but admitted he had no idea of what to expect from his quarter-milers and dashmen, most of whom are first-year men.

So far this spring the team's work-outs have been confined almost exclusively to the YMCA and the Armory. The UMD thinclads will be at a considerable disadvantage at St. Thomas since several of the competing schools already have three or four meets under their belts.

The UMD golf and tennis teams travel to Northfield today for a dual meet with St. Olaf college. Unable to watch any of the golf candidates in action due to the recent adverse weather, Coach Lewis Rickert has decided to string along with proven lettermen for the first outing. As soon as course conditions permit, he will run a ladder tournament to determine the five men who will represent UMD on the links in each of the remaining meets. Returning lettermen include Bill Strang, Walt Bida, Jack Girard and Bobb Rastello.

A similar plan will be followed by tennis Coach Ray Isenbarger, who will build a seven-man team around the nucleus formed by lettermen Kermit Johnson and Don Ames and freshman Bruce Bixon. Two additional men will be selected by Isenbarger to make the St. Olaf trip.

Finns Capture Fourth Title

"It looks like we'll have to break them up next year." This was the reaction of intramural director Ward Wells following the victory by the Flying Finns in the finals of the all-nations tourney. That team had just won its fourth consecutive tourney championship in UMD basketball by defeating the Commies, 40-34.

The victors, who have also played under the banners of Rangers and Vesel's Weasels, tucked away two intramural and two all-nations buntings in the past two years.

Captain of the victorious squad is Jim Keranen who, as do most of the team, hails from Tower-Soudan. Joining Keranen on the quintet are Ernie Mustonen, Bill Lamppa, Bob Salmela, Mel Hendrickson and Wally Heikkinen.

Keranen

Frank Stepan, Marty Vesel, and John Zobitz bolster the Finns during intramural play. This team represented UMD in the MIAC extramural meet at St. Thomas college this spring and was eliminated in the semi-final round of that tournament.

LOCKER-ROOM CHATTER

by DAVE DYE

One of the most entertaining sports activities presented in Duluth this year was witnessed by a fair-sized crowd at the National Guard Armory last Saturday. Donkey basketball, with all its fun and laughter, was a pleasant conclusion to the winter cage season.

Those of you who did not attend the games really missed some fun. The whole evening was one hilarious laugh, beginning with a contest between two teams of girls.

Most of the coeds managed to get astride the animals and stay on. However, Mary Ellen Hanssen and Ella Johnston just couldn't seem to climb aboard. The obliging burro finally lay down and allowed Mary Ellen to mount, only to remain stubborn, and on the floor.

Perhaps the most bruised person was Dick Nelson, who just couldn't stay on his donkey. It seemed that the only way Dick could dismount was forward, right on his head, over the animal's neck.

"Sully" Smith eventually did get on his burro. Fred Murphy was riding a real bucking bronco all evening, and Joe Vatalaro looked like a jockey astride his mount.

During halftime, the owner of the animals introduced them by name. Fred Murphy's donkey was called Dagwood Bumstead, Lane Soderquist had mounted Kilroy while Jack Coons had matched wits with Ingrid Bergman for the whole first half without knowing it.

It was, indeed, a memorable evening. Next year, when the "M" club sponsors the event again, as they undoubtedly will, why don't you take time off and enjoy a very hilarious time.
